

Requirements for Radon Testers, Mitigators, Laboratory (Providers of Radon Services)

California law requires person to possess certification(s) from the National Radon Safety Board (NSRB) or the National Environmental Health Association (NEHA) as a tester, a mitigator, or a laboratory. These professional organizations provide training classes and testing as part of their certification programs. If you interested becoming certified, the first step would be to contact either of these organizations's certification programs.
